HONGKONG, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 9, 1882.

WHEN Mr. Consul General LOURETRO pranced into the witness box at the Police Court in the course célèbre Gienner v. Pereira a few weeks ago, apparently for the express purpose of flippantly throwing mud at the Portuguese community of Hongkong by the gratuitous and uncalled for charge that they were ignorant of their own mother tongue; that, in fact, as Shakespere, puts it, "they had been at a great feast services might be made available and of languages, and stolen the scraps," he could hardly have foreseen the hornet's nest he was bringing about his ears. Had his good genius warned him of the storm of indignation which his illtimed sneers have elicited, we think that His Consulship would have avoided such unenviable notoriety, by following the old precept that discretion is the better part of valour. There can be little doubt that some of Mr. Lourerro's statements -- for instance, that to the effect that very few | natives of Macao and Hongkong are acquainted with the Portuguese languagecontain more than a scintilla of truth; but that, of course, is no justification for the Consul's extraordinary method of enlightening the Police Magistrate and the public generally on the subject. It has been said that out of evil intentions good results sometimes come, and we should not be at all surprised if what Mr. Louretro intended for a degrading insult should eventually prove an unmixed blessing for the Portuguese community of Hongkong.

It is perfectly true that the natives of Macao and their déscendants in Hongkong do not speak the Portuguese language pure and undefiled. It would, perhaps, be sufficiently correct for all purposes of argument to say that Macao Portuguese is a patois of by the House of Commons, authorizing the the mother tongue. But this can hardly be construction of a bridge across the Firth of regarded as a matter for surprise when it Forth at Queensferry, in substitution of the one is remembered that in no part of Great Britain is the English language spoken in its purity excepting by the educated classes, and not always by them. The English of an ordinary citizen of London is just as much a palois of the modern language as are the incomprehensible dialects of the west of England, agriculturists, and the broad dorie of the Lowland Scots. And in France a similar state of affairs exists. The French language as spoken in Paris is a very different tongue to the palois of the provinces. However, both French and English when used as written languages are the same throughout the world; whereas we are led to believe that, the written, mother country, Portugal. Nor can this was 29.16.

even be marvelled at when we remember the many different elements of which Macao society has been composed for so many years. On this ground alone, -the fact that the natives of Macao are to some extent a mixed race—the hybrid character of their dialect, if not justified, at least absolves the people from unfair criticism, and unjust reproach.

If the Portuguese Government attach such vast importance to their subjects speaking the language of Camoens in its virgin purity, it may well be asked why they have never taken the necessary steps to accomplish their aim. The present Chief Justice of Macao, Dr. BRAGA D'OLIVIERA, once informed us that when he first came to the Holy City it was with the ulmost difficulty he could understand the language, even when spokenby the lawyers and other educated classes. The Portuguese language as taught at Colmbra, and spoken in Lisbon, is not the language of Macao. Such being the case, we may well ask, - In what language are the studies of the youth of Macao carried on in the socalled colleges of the city? Are the pronatives of Macao? Do they teach pure! Portuguese, or that language adultered/ with Macao idioms? Consul General Love! hitko must be acquainted with all these things! Why, then, has he, a native of Macao, a paid officer of the government: a gentleman, who, according to his own showing, knows the Portuguese language what he considers so great an evil? Echo | be accompanied by the name and address of the answers "Why," and imagination conjures up visions of Mr. Jose da Shiva Louretro! in the witness box triumphantly performling before a mixed audience, and demolishing his political opponents with an air of calm defiance which beggars descrip-

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

WE are informed by the Acting Agent of the Occidental and Oriental S. S. Co., that the steamship Gaelie, with mails, &c., from San Francisco, to the 15th ultimo, has arrived at [ Yokohama, and sailed for this port yesterday.

THE Mainicht Shimbun asserts that the Peking Government has sent an application to the Finance Department at Tokiyo for the coinage of 300,000 taels of silver, and that accordingly an order has been forwarded to the Osaka, Mint for the execution of the work,

THE Bill, which has already been sanctioned originally sanctioned in 1873, has passed unopposed through the House of Lords.

A CORRESPONDENT informs us that a typhoon passed over North Formosa on the 31st ultimo. At Keelung little or no damage was done, but the Tamsui district has suffered severely. Many houses were unroofed, crops destroyed, and cattle drowned; the loss of human life has also been very considerable. For some weeks previous, the drought had been so much felt in the neighbourhood, that the authorities, to propitiate their rain-god, had prohibited the slaughtering of cattle, pigs &c., but on the 31st ultimo the windows of heaven were opened, and on the face of the earth the waters prevailed exceedingly. At Tamsui the Customs rain-guage registered a fall of 10 inches in 24 hours, and at Keelung it rained language of Macao is not that of the of the barometer at Tamsui during the typhoon, 7 inches in the same time. The lowest reading

According to the Hochi Shimbun, a new departure on an extensive scale is about to be taken by the horse-breeding fraternity in Japan, in the prefectures of Miyagi, Iwate, and Awomori, with the object of raising a better class of stock for all purposes than can at present be obtained. It appears that a number of breeders have combined and subscribed the sum of 45,000 yen, and made application to the Department of Agriculture for a subsidy of 20,000 yen to assist them in their object, which sum has been granted under certain conditions. The same paper adds that it is the intention of the persons interested in this scheme to ask Mr. von Siebold, the Secretary of the Austrian Legation, shortly about to go home on leave, to purchase brood marcs and stallions from establishments whence are drawn the horses for the Austrian cavalry.

A FERTILE imagination, says the Shanghai Courier of the 2nd inst., is a useful accomplishment in a newspaper reporter, and especially so when it can be exercised in such a varied field as the Mixed Court affords. To cause a laugh oversome coolie charged with a petty offence, or to make the British Assessor appear inconsistent, the imaginative Mixed Court reporter of the Mercury in some instances is rather careless of the truth. We do not aspire to share his fame, nor do we wish to mar in any way the reputation he has acquired. We have been asked to correct fessors sent out from Portugul, or are they one of his mistakes, and we do so simply because it is a mis-statement of facts calculated to create an injurious impression in the public mind. According to last night's Mercury, a boatman! was sent to gool for stealing there pigs of lead from a cargo-boat belonging to the Shanghai Cargo Boat Company, ' How he came to make this statement his own fertile mind will, of course, know. As a matter of fact, the case had nothing whatever to do with the Shanghai Cargo Boat better than anyone in Hongkong; why, Company. The prisoner formerly belonged to we ask, has he not taken steps to remedy the crew of the yacht Ariadne, and he was charged with stealing three of the lead mouldings used as ballast. Having discussed in our first article the anature of the movements which create and those which constitute a Typhoon, we have next to consider the motion of translation of the storm over, the earth's surface. Just as a top, while spinning, will travel over a floor or table, and as the planets, while rotating swiftly on their axes, move along in their orbits, so a typhoon, once completely formed, is apparently never stationary, but travels, at first slowly, and then with increased speed, over the sea and land, Here again the earth's axial rotation, which has so much to do in governing the gyrations of the air at a typhoon's birth, directly influences the course of the meteor, and urges it towards the north pole. Indeed, if no other forces came into operation, its motion would be directly northward, antagonist, which, after making the south But these storms are besides compelled to | end of Formosa, suddenly gave up the partake in some measure of the general protracted struggle and fied north-eastmotions of the atmosphere near the earth's | ward, to be heard of ten days later in surface, which for the most part; in the Japan, whither it had been attracted by typhoon region, incline 'northwestward another area of low pressures. Indeed, it near be accepted as a general and important maxim that a typhoon will always travel, if it can, towards the centre of the nearest area of lower pressure. Now, on through the Bashee'Channel. A third and the North Pacific Ocean, the pressures which rule during summer in the lower latitudes are higher-than those on the Chinese mainland, and in Siberia. There is a maximum of pressure in the Mid-Pacific, and there are minima about the southwest limit of Mongolia and the region of the Sea of Okhotsk. Hence, since the Pacific is the birthplace of all typhoons, they as a rule combine with their tendency poleward a westerly movement in the direction of the mainland, travelling with the great aerial surface currents towards the regions of deficient pressure and rarefied air on the heated continent of Asia. In fact, unless they are hindered by serious obstacles or diverted by greater attractions, summer typhoons originating in moderately low latitudes always tend to move in the first part of their course in a direction between the north and west, from the high pressures of the Pacific to the relatively low pressures of Mid-China. So powerful indeed is the influence exerted by low-pressure areas that we find cases during the last two years in which the tendency to travel northward has been have had their origin outside of the wholly overcome by the superior attractions of lower pressures, which have even produced movements somewhat to the south of south-east of Japan, one near the Pratas

A beautiful illustration of this latter fact is to be found in the history of the seventeenth typhoon of 1881. This storm was first heard of near the north-east of Luzon on the 24th October. Attracted by the were being produced at that time by the passage of another typhoon through Mid-China, and probably also impelled by a powerful equatorial upper current flowing towards the continent, it had at first a well-marked north-westerly direction. For four days it fought its way against the monsoon, doggedly and slowly, across the Bashee Channel between Luzon and Formosa, only advancing in that time about 220 miles, or 2.3 miles per hour.. Towards the close of the year, when the monsoon has become well established down to the equator, typhoons disappear altogether from these seas.

FOOCHOW.

Murders, suicides and executions seem recently to predominate over everything else at the Anchorage. We hear of two instances of suicide low pressures on the mainland which baying taken place there during the past week, but not of a sufficiently romantic character to interest our readers. One execution is reported. The preparations which are being made for Signor Chiarinis' Circus are of the most extensive character. The site chosen could not be in a better or more central position; whilst there is room for a larger expanse of canvas than we can reasonably expect a circus travelling under such difficulties to possess. The ground is being enclosed by a strong bamboo fencing, so that there need be little fear of a disorderly crowd of inquisitive Chinese either damaging the tent, or occasioning annoyance to Foreign visitors. We regret to learn, at the moment of going well established and blowing with great to press, that there is a possibility of the community being disappointed by Signor Chiarin's Circus not visiting the port. It appears that the Mandarins have visited the various Consuls and explained that they cannot be responsible for any disturbance which might arise by depriving the Chinese of the same free access to which they claim privilege at their own entertainments. We further learn that the Mandarins have offered to defray any reasonable expenses al ready incurred by Signor Chiarini, and that the latter's Agent has demanded the large amount of five thousand dollars. This report, however, must be taken cum grano salis. On Saturday evening last as the steamship Appin (Captain Bendall) was entering the Typhoons simply obey a natural law in | wan Islands and seeking to pass up the | Anchorage, she touched on one of the shifting seeking areas of low pressure in prefer- Formosa Strait, met with a similar re- sand banks and, the tide running rapidly with her at the time, it was simply impossible to back the vessel off before she swung. The barque Gilead lay at anchor in rather tooclose proximity; for the former steamer in swinging off the shoal caught the Barque, without, however, doing her any damage. The Appin's mizen-mast was snapped off, and two of her boats crushed and a portion of the stern railing broken off. The difficulty of navigating the Min is well known, and at the place where this collision occurred, the sand banks shift suddenly, and in the most unaccountable manner, and are liable to deceive even those incessantly traversing the river. Foochow has been once again fortunate in escaping the violence of a typhoon, which threatened to vent itself on the port since Monday last. At nine o'clock in the morning of the latter day there were similar appearances of one of these dreaded tornadoes as were ominous on the 15th ultimo; the baror eteragain falling so suddenly as to indicate the necessity of all steam vessels at the Anchorage being prepared; and the latter got under steam as quickly as possible. Throughout the morning, rain prevailed in Foochow, and towards afternoon a fresh northerly wind spring up; the river, with an unusually high tide, piesenting an animated appearance by the innumerable sampans forcing their way into the creeks and, after vociferous harrangues from their occupants, at last settling in a sheltered position. On either side banks, and sampans huddled together, with here and there a houseboat or steam-launch observ able-an unusual location for this description of Throughout the night, the wind was certainly boisterous, but nothing approaching a typhoon and, by early morn, little indication of such an event was left; although our report from Pagoda informed us that the barometer was still lowering to an alarming extent. Throughout Tuesday, and last night there was a strong and variable wind, but as this morning dawned, all fears of a typhoon were dispelled.—Herald,

Business in the Share Market is very dull. Not a single transaction has come under our notice since yesterday.

4 o'Clock p.m. The Share Market is still very dull. Chinese Insurances have gone up, and shares are wanted at $240. Docks have been negociated at 53 per cent. premium for end of September, and there are still buyers on above terms; the cash quotation remains unchanged, there being a few shares on the market at quotation for eash. China Sugars have been put through at $190 per share for end of the month, and from the firm position of the stock, we quote that as the ruling rate for cash, although half a point less might lead to business. Luzons have become firmer in the market, and a good many shares might be placed at $130, cash. No other stocks require special mention.
